

INVESTIGATE AND ALERT

TruLookup Driving Violations Search

OVERVIEW

Understand an individual's traffic citations and violations. To assess risk and locate individuals, organizations can benefit from actionable insights about an individual's driving history.

Driving Violations Search, available via TLOxp, part of the TruLookup™ product line, provides details about individuals' traffic citations and driving violations with associated dates, available from various states in the US.

Driving Violations Search can also provide useful insights for collectors engaged in locating and skip tracing subjects. With information on where a driving violation occurred, organizations can quickly tap into insights that can help them confirm where to search and more efficiently locate a subject.

In the legal industry, Driving Violations Search delivers insights about a plaintiff, defendant or juror, helping uncover any recent history of citations, traffic violations or other driving infractions that could impact legal proceedings.

How it works

TLOxp offers two search options to find traffic citations, violations, violation dates and court dates for a subject or address. The Person Search returns the last seven years of driving violations issued to your subject. It also shows a subject's home address or license plate registration address in cases of parking or red light camera violations. Using Address Search, organizations will see the last seven years of driving violations issued for subjects at an address.

BENEFITS

- Identify a subject's history of traffic citations and driving violations over the last seven years
- Conduct investigations more efficiently and find driving violations issued to a subject who lived at an address within the last seven years
- Quickly see active or dismissed violations that may typically be harder to discover
